Computers and Human Language

GEORGE W. SMITH,
University of Massachusetts, Boston

Offering an inquiry into the nature of language from the perspective of computing, Computers and Human Language synthesizes recent research in linguistics, computer science, and experimental psychology as it explores the major computational approaches to language, especially the modeling of processes by which language is comprehended.

Among the topics considered are the computationally symbolic basis of language, lexicons as repositories of information, automated text processing, phonology, phototactics, speech synthesis and the persisting challenge of continuous speech, transformational grammars and their successors, linguistic and conceptual approaches to sentence meaning, and discourse coherence and plan-based bridging inferences. The book also explores such up-to-the-minute subjects as neurally-inspired computing, parsing and psychological plausibility, the controversial representation hypothesis, and the ramifications of discourse "focus." With its clear, engaging style and gradual, systematic exposition, Computers and Human Language makes the fast-moving world of computational linguistics readily accessible to students.

THE ACL-MIT PRESS SERIES IN NATURAL LANGUAGE PROCESSING

Aravind Joshi, Editor

The ACL-MIT Series will offer books of high quality in the field of natural language processing, including human and machine speech production and understanding. It will cover a wide range of topics, both theoretical and applied, which should interest researchers not only in computational linguistics, but also in computer science and in formal linguistics.

The Series will include specially commissioned volumes, research monographs, textbooks, and on occasion, collections of high quality papers with clear unifying themes compiled under the editorship of distinguished researchers.

The MIT Press publishes the ACL journal, Computational Linguistics. The Press also has a strong list in formal linguistics, and publishes the journal, Linguistic Inquiry.

PLAN RECOGNITION IN NATURAL
LANGUAGE DIALOGUE

Sandra Carberry

In most current natural language systems each query is treated as an isolated request for information regardless of its context in dialogue. Sandra Carberry addresses the problem of creating computational strategies that can improve user-computer communication by assimilating ongoing dialogue and reasoning on the acquired knowledge.

INTENTIONS IN COMMUNICATION

edited by Philip R. Cohen, Jerry Morgan, and

The fourteen contributions in this book address central questions about the nature of intention as it is understood in theories of communication, the crucial role of intention recognition in understanding utterances, and the use of principles of rational interaction in interpreting speech acts.

Vol. 3. Pieter de Haan: Postmodifying Clauses in the English Noun Phrase. A Corpus-Based Study. Amsterdam/Atlanta GA 1989. 252 pp.

ISBN: 90-5183-123-4.

Hfl. 75,—/US-$ 37.50

The study aims at a description of the most important characteristics of postmodifying clauses (PMCs) in the English noun phrase (NP). The author discusses these, and the relationships obtaining among them, on the basis of an examination of a corpus of English texts. The first two chapters are devoted to a detailed description of the structure of the NP more generally, and the PMC in particular. Both finite and non-finite clauses are discussed. The emphasis is on such matters as clause patterns in the PMC, type and function of the linkword, type and function of the NP, and type, form and position of the PMC.

Guidelines for Submissions

Manuscripts to Computational Linguistics should be submitted on letter-size paper (8.5 by 11 inches, or A4), double-spaced throughout, including footnotes and references. The paper should begin with an informative abstract of approximately 150-250 words. Manuscripts must be written in English. Contact the editor regarding the possibility of electronic submission.

Submissions may be made in any of the following categories:

PAPER: This category includes contributions that report significant new research results in computational linguistics or that provide critical reviews of the literature on a particular topic. The length of a paper depends on its content, but we suggest that manuscripts be limited to forty double-spaced pages. That is the equivalent of twelve journal pages. Each paper is fully refereed, being read by at least two members of the editorial board and usually by an additional expert in the particular subject matter.

The submission of an article to CL for refereeing means that the author certifies the manuscript is not copyrighted; nor has it been published or submitted for publication to another refereed journal. If any version of the paper has appeared, or will appear, in a non-refereed publication, the details of such publication must be made known to the Editor at the time of submission. The final version of a paper tentatively accepted for publication must be accompanied by a Copyright Transfer Agreement signed by all of the authors or, in the case of a "work for hire," by the employer. This written transfer is necessary under the 1978 U.S. Copyright law.

TECHNICAL CORRESPONDENCE: This category includes short articles reporting preliminary results of some project in progress, or the results of other studies of interest to the readership. Technical correspondences should not generally exceed eight double-spaced pages. Each technical correspondence is reviewed by at least two members of the editorial board before acceptance.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR: This includes statements of opinion on issues relevant to the readership. The Editor and the editorial board will evaluate the appropriateness of these contributions for inclusion.

Five copies of papers, technical correspondences, and letters should be sent to the Editor:

James F. Allen, CL Editor
Department of Computer Science
University of Rochester
Rochester, NY 14627, USA
INTERNET:acl@cs.rochester.edu

Anyone interested in reviewing a book, or in suggesting a book for review, should contact the Book Review Editor; publishers may also submit copies of books for review directly to the Book Review Editor:

Graeme Hirst, CL Book Review Editor
Department of Computer Science
University of Toronto
Toronto, CANADA M5S 1A4
INTERNET:gh@ai.toronto.edu

The FINITE STRING Editor should receive (a) copies of technical reports and reprints of papers published elsewhere—or at least citation information and abstracts of such items and of books and monographs; (b) summaries of research in progress—of particular interest would be perspectives on the activities at a particular institution; (c) announcements of meetings of potential interest to the membership; and (d) personal notes (e.g., honors, moving, changes in status). Time-sensitive material should be received by the first day of the second month of each quarter to appear in the next issue. Submissions (where possible in electronic form) should be sent to The FINITE STRING Editor:

Ralph Weischedel, FINITE STRING Editor
