A Dataset Collection

A.1 Annotation Instructions

In this section, we show the instructions for French annotation:

- There are two existing columns of conversations: the first column (en) is the original conversations in English, the second column (fr) is the conversations translated by an automatic system (e.g., Google Translate).
- You should copy the conversation from the second column (the translated conversations) into the third column (named fr_annotation). In that column, you should then revise the incorrect or inappropriate translations.
- The goal of the revision is to make the conversations more coherent and fluent in the target language (French). Hence you can customize dialogues and persona sentences to make them fluent and coherent in the target language, including by deviating from the original translation. However, you should retain persona and conversation consistency.

A.2 Training Set Statistics

We report our iterative revised training set statistics in Table 1. The partial samples of revision for each language are shown in Table 2 to Table 7. There are some rules for each replacement, but due to space limitation, the revision condition is not reported in the corresponding table.

B Human Evaluation

As illustrated in Figure 1, the annotator is provided with two full dialogues made by a self-chat model or human-dialogues. Then the annotators are asked the following questions:

* Equal contributions. Listing order is random

Train
Lang	# Dial.	# Utt.	Edit	BLEU
Fr	16878	248244	0.06	99.98
It	16878	248244	1.09	99.8
Id	16878	248244	0.18	99.94
