

American Journal of Computational Linguistics      Microfiche 80

I N F E R E N C E   A N D   T H E O R Y

DAVID L. WALTZ, EDITOR

Coordinated Science Laboratory
University of Illinois
Urbana 61801

Papers presented in two sessions of TINLAP-2, the 1978 Meeting of the Association for Computational Linguistics, held with joint sponsorship by the Association for Computing Machinery and its Special Interest Group in Artificial Intelligence.

Copyright      1978, 1979
Association for Computing Machinery
Association for Computational Linguistics

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PAPER FICHE

Session 5 Inference Mechanisms in Natural Language

A Note on Partial Match of Descriptions. Can One Simultaneously Question (Retrieve) and Inform (Update)? Aravind K. Joshi .....	.....	184	3
With Spoon in Hand this must be the Eating Frame Eugene Charniak .....	.....	187	6
Fragments of a Theory of Human Plausible Reasoning Allan Collins .....	.....	194	13
Indirect Responses to Loaded Questions S. Jerrold Kaplan .....	.....	202	21
On Reasoning by Default Raymond Reiter .....	.....	210	29
Path-Based and Node-Based Inference in Semantic Networks Stuart C. Shapiro .....	.....	219	38
The Representation of Derivable Information in Memory When What Might Have Been Left Unsaid is Said Rand J. Spiro, Joseph Esposito, and Richard J. Vondruska .....	.....	226	45

Session 6 Computational Models as a Vehicle for Theoretical Linguistics

A Heuristic for Paradigms Joseph E. Grimes .....	.....	232	51
A Computational Account of Some Constraints on Language Mitchell Marcus .....	.....	236	55
Remarks on Processing, Constraints, and the Lexicon Thomas Wasow .....	.....	247	66
List of Questions Suggested for Consideration in Each Session .....	.....	252	71